Alex Quigley

Every classroom includes pupils who struggle to access learning because of barriers with reading, writing, language and communication. As schools strengthen their inclusive practice, literacy has become one of the most powerful tools for removing these barriers and ensuring every pupil can access an ambitious curriculum. At the heart of this masterclass is Alex Quigley's innovative SHARE Implementation Framework, providing schools with a practical, evidence-informed approach to implementing high-quality literacy across the curriculum.

In this exclusive Teachology Masterclass, literacy expert Alex Quigley shares the latest evidence, practical classroom strategies and diagnostic tools to help teachers remove literacy barriers for pupils with SEND. Bringing together literacy, adaptive teaching and inclusive practice, delegates will leave with practical strategies that improve curriculum access, raise expectations and strengthen outcomes for every learner.

High-Impact Literacy Strategies for SEND

- Explicit teaching that reduces cognitive overload
- Practical approaches to reading, writing, vocabulary and classroom talk
- Supporting pupils to access increasingly complex curriculum texts
- Developing reading fluency and writing confidence
- Using manageable assessment to identify literacy barriers early
- Adapting disciplinary literacy approaches to improve curriculum access across every subject

Literacy as the Foundation of Inclusion

- Why literacy is the gateway to curriculum access for pupils with SEND
- How literacy barriers affect learning across the four broad areas of need
- Why reading, writing, vocabulary and talk underpin inclusive classrooms
- Building stronger literacy foundations to improve outcomes for every learner

Who should attend

Literacy leaders, SENCOs, middle leaders, teaching and learning leads, curriculum leaders, senior leadership teams and classroom teachers who want to strengthen literacy provision, improve outcomes for pupils with SEND and create more inclusive classrooms across every phase and subject.

Adaptive Teaching Through a Literacy Lens

- Balancing high expectations with appropriate support
- Responsive classroom adaptations that remove literacy barriers
- Practical scaffolds that build independence
- Adaptive teaching without creating multiple lessons
- Applying the S.H.A.R.E. framework to literacy

Diagnosing Literacy Barriers

- Recognising the most common literacy barriers linked to SEND
- Practical diagnostic tools every teacher can use
- Understanding when pupils need targeted intervention
- Using assessment to inform classroom practice

Leading Literacy Across an Inclusive School

- Developing an evidence-informed literacy strategy
- Building a consistent whole-school approach
- Supporting colleagues through coaching and professional development
- Evaluating the impact of literacy provision
- Practical next steps for sustainable school improvement

Every Delegate Will Receive

- A signed copy of Alex Quigley's latest bestselling book
- Practical literacy assessment tools
- Classroom planning prompts
- Ready-to-use literacy strategies
- Resources to support whole-school implementation
